About Banaras Hindu University

Banaras Hindu University, founded in 1916 by the visionary educationist Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, stands as one of India's premier institutions of higher learning. Established with the mission to promote education in Indian culture and heritage alongside modern sciences, BHU has grown into a vibrant academic and research hub. It boasts a sprawling campus, numerous faculties, and a diverse student body. Renowned for its contributions to various fields, including science, medicine, and humanities, BHU has produced many notable alumni and has been instrumental in fostering intellectual and cultural growth in India. Its status as an Institute of Eminence reflects its commitment to excellence and innovation in education and research.

About CME

We are pleased to announce a comprehensive CME and hands-on workshop designed to significantly enhance your research skills in the areas of neurobehavioral studies and immunohistochemistry. This event is thoughtfully divided into two enriching parts, each tailored to provide both theoretical knowledge and practical skills.

Part 1: Neurobehavioral Studies Using Mice

In the first part of the workshop, participants will dive deep into the use of mice for studying various neuro behaviors. This segment will cover a wide range of behavioral tests using different types of mazes, such as the Morris water maze, elevated plus maze, and open field test. These tests are pivotal in assessing cognitive functions, anxiety, and locomotion in mice, which are critical for understanding neurological diseases and disorders.

The session will also include comprehensive training on the basics of mice handling, ensuring that participants are well-versed in ethical and effective techniques. Additionally, you will learn to utilize specialized software for data acquisition and analysis, enhancing your ability to conduct and interpret neurobehavioral experiments. This part of the workshop is designed to provide a solid foundation in both the theoretical and practical aspects of neurobehavioral research, enabling you to apply these skills directly to your work.

Part 2: Immunohistochemistry in Anatomy

The second part of the workshop will focus on immunohistochemistry, a powerful technique used to visualize specific proteins and other molecules within tissue sections. This session will be led by a distinguished resource person with extensive experience in the field, who will provide in-depth knowledge about the principles and applications of immunohistochemistry in anatomical research.

Participants will learn about the preparation of tissue samples, the selection and application of appropriate antibodies, and the visualization and interpretation of staining results. This part of the workshop will highlight the role of immunohistochemistry in understanding cellular and molecular structures within tissues, making it an invaluable tool for anatomical studies and medical research.

By attending this CME and hands-on workshop, participants will gain not only theoretical knowledge but also practical skills that are immediately applicable to their research endeavors. This workshop promises to be an invaluable experience for anyone looking to advance their expertise in these cutting-edge areas of study. You will have the unique opportunity to learn from leading experts, network with peers, and enhance your professional capabilities.

We are confident that you will find this workshop immensely beneficial and look forward to your active participation.

From The Desk of Chief Organizing Secretary

On behalf of the organizing committee, I am delighted to invite you to the 30th UP-ASICON 2024, hosted by Department of Anatomy, Institute of Medical Sciences, Banaras Hindu University in the historic city of Varanasi. We promise you an enriching academic feast, with enlightening CME sessions and engaging discussions that will enhance your knowledge and professional skills.

In addition to the academic benefits, you will enjoy a comfortable stay and have the opportunity to explore Varanasi's renowned religious and heritage sites, adding a unique cultural experience to your visit.

We look forward to welcoming you for an unforgettable time of learning and fellowship.

Warm regards,
Prof. Anand Mishra
